

A black and white photograph of a sandy, eroded landscape. The foreground shows a wide, shallow channel or track cut into the sand, with several parallel lines suggesting a path or vehicle tracks. The sand is light-colored and textured, with some darker spots and small rocks scattered throughout. Sparse, dry vegetation, including thin sticks and small plants, is scattered across the scene, particularly in the upper and lower corners. The overall tone is desolate and natural.

LAND

Join us for a journey through Urla, shaped by land, craft, and taste

1–5 October 2026

URLA, Turkey

In the west of Turkey, overlooking the Aegean Sea, Urla stretches between sun-drenched vineyards and rolling hills with quiet confidence. Its roots reach back to Klazomenai, an ancient settlement known for early olive oil production, winemaking, and artisanal craftsmanship that continues to shape the region today. The region's vineyards produce distinctive local wines, while its markets, taverns, and kitchens reflect a rich tradition of flavours and seasonal ingredients.

Generations of land, labor, and tradition have created a place where culture, taste, and daily life come together, offering visitors moments of discovery, connection, and calm.

Itinerary

Urla Journey, Curated Experience

Day 1 – Arrival in the Aegean

Guests arrive in Izmir and are privately transferred to the hotel in Urla. After time to settle in, the journey begins with a welcome dinner featuring a selection of Turkish wines and an introduction to the region's wine culture. The evening offers a relaxed first gathering accompanied by conversation and insights from a guest speaker.

Day 2 – Vineyards & Aegean Cuisine

The day begins with a leisurely breakfast before heading into the vineyards surrounding Urla. A visit to Arboretum and Urla Winery offers a walk through the estate and a guided tasting with small seasonal bites.

The exploration continues with a tasting at USCA's intimate tasting room, where guests discover the character of local grapes and the revival of indigenous varieties.

In the afternoon, guests return to the hotel for a moment of rest before visiting the town of Urla, with time to wander its streets and visit a local artist's studio.

Dinner takes place at OD Urla, where seasonal ingredients and contemporary Aegean cuisine are paired with carefully selected wines.

Day 3 – Landscape, Art & Wine

After breakfast, the day begins with a tour of Urla and Karantina Island, discovering the landscapes and stories that shape the region.

A visit to a local artist offers insight into the creative life of the area, followed by a traditional lunch highlighting regional dishes.

In the afternoon, guests visit Statera Winery for a tasting that reflects the character of the local terroir.

The evening unfolds at HUS Wines, where dinner is accompanied by live jazz in a relaxed setting.
